I believe the DOJ settlement with Microsoft is a farce.

Microsoft should be broken up, and the browser should be seperated from the Operating system.

It can be done manually, and I HAVE done it many times on every version of their OS. Microsoft's claims to the contrary are complete fabrications, and indications of their utter disregard for the truth.

Microsoft eats up or destroys any competition. They DO make standards, which is good. But they smother innovation. All they ever do is add bloat to their programs, and provide little new in the way of stability for their premier product, Windows.

Microsoft's settlement will do nothing. Change that. Seperate their business lines.
